CS 6402 – Advanced Topics in Data Mining

Course Description

In this course we will explore advanced topics of current interest in the field of data mining. Students will be required to read and discuss seminal and state-of-the-art papers as well as conduct topical research projects that include design, implementation, experimentation, analysis, written, and oral reporting components.